1252	Athelstan	MT	-	England	F: Edward (the Elder)	d: 939	-	-	England	925-939: King of England, succeeding his father.	Swint: Ch.1C, Sh.2	(a) Viking Kings and Chieftans in Anglo-Saxon England.
1253					M: Edgiva					927: Athelstan invaded Northumbria & expelled Guthfrith and Olaf, Sihtric's son. He entered York, demolished the Scandinavian fortifications & destributed the loot that he found there among his army. For the first time a Southern King ruled from York. To maintain that rule meant the north & south were at war for the next quarter of a century. Athelstan drove north to Bamburgh where Ealdred (Eadulf, Eadulf) was brought under his control. Athelstan continued into Scotland where he burned and pillaged while Constantine could only look on. By 937 his rule covered all of modern England over which he was more 'emperor' than 'king'. The Northern kings formed a grand alliance and marched south to meet Athelstan & his forces at a place called Brunanburgh. Athelstan attached first with a dawn assault. The battle raged until late in the day. The northern rebellion was shattered (a).
1254										939: Athelstan died and left the throne to his half-brother Edmund (Eadmund), a young man of 18 years (a).
